Make Waves... Give Opinions!

We know many of you use Facebook, Youtube and tons of other websites throughout the week... have you seen ours? The library's youth services department is exploring how we can better serve you through sites you're already using... as well as clue you into some you may not know of! Would you use a library blog if it had links to new books, research how-to videos and other random info? If you had input into the content? Did you know the library has a Facebook page? Are you a writer who'd like an outlet or a future director who wants to help create "book trailers"? Have you ever heard of del.icio.us and know how it could help you research and work on group projects? We do... but we need your opinions on what to focus on! Stop in anytime during the day (9-5) on 7/10 or 7/24 and see samples and give us your opinions... that day or through SurveyMonkey. Then stop back in August for the next round to give more opinions!

Date: Saturday, July 10th and July 24th

Time: 9am-5pm

Location: See in-library display
